JACK SCHWAB
CRISIS DIRECTOR

Jack Schwab is a third-year in the college grew up in Dallas, although he's secretly from Orange County, which is why he is a diehard loyalist of the L.A. Lakers (no one can explain why he's an Atletico Madrid fan). He's double-majoring in Geographical Sciences and Latin American Studies and wishes he had been born at a time he could've combined those two majors by exploring the Amazon. A newbie at Model U.N., Jack founded CANA, a campus Christian journal with a readership just slightly bigger than its staff, serves as president of the rugby team despite being only an okay forward, and works in a retirement investment start-up, the most boring type of finance job. You can find him around campus speaking 70% Portuguese 30% English, monologuing about the cultural significance of books he hasn't read yet, and debating whether HBO MAX or Peacock has the better classic movie selection.
