

REWRITING THE UNWRITTEN: A SUMMIT ON INFORMATION ETHICS

Information is constantly shared and is the core of our society, but this core is often contaminated by the unethical. In this committee we are looking beyond the physical collection or attribution of information and looking at the often neglected personal side by asking questions such as, What is ethically collected information? What do we do with unethically collected information used for ethical purposes, such as in cases like Henrietta Lax? How do we ensure that information remains ethical as information sharing becomes more technological? How do we ensure the information of the unheard is heard? This committee is looking not only to Rewrite current history and information, but rewrite it for those who are unwritten in fields such as medicine, technology, governmental policy, and more.

This will be a double-delegation committee. There are no position papers due.
